BOOKS:

Adults:

Subverted by Sue Ellen Browder (available on Formed)

<https://watch.formed.org/subverted-by-sue-allen-browder>

In Subverted, Browder exposes how abortion and contraception became synonymous with feminism, even though the women's movement originally rejected both, along with the 1960s sexual revolution. The feminists who originally fought for equal opportunity for women in education and the workplace found themselves reduced to a movement that encouraged women to make themselves into ambitious sex objects. Browder, originally an investigative journalist, uses her past employment with Cosmopolitan magazine to pull back the curtain on the "unholy alliance" between the women's movement and the sexual revolution, which paved the way for legalized abortion.

Kids and Families:

Horton Hears a Who!

Perhaps the most famous children's book with a pro-life theme, Horton Hears a Who charms readers with vibrant pictures and quirky characters who remind us that "a person's a person, no matter how small." This book teaches children the value of standing up for people who don't have a voice.

MOVIES:

Let watch these movies and pray for euthanasia awareness!

Coco:

Disney Pixar's "Coco" was released in 2017, and this animated film continues to resonate with audiences for its playful and death-positive portrayal of family, grief, and the afterlife.

Terms of Endearment: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=bFa5SjnbHjU>

Winning "Best Picture" at the 1984 Oscars, "Terms of Endearment" is a timeless film about the relationship between a mother, daughter, and the men in their lives. The film also explores how terminal illness impacts the bond these women share. Starring Shirley MacLaine, Jack Nicholson, and Debra Winger.

"Terms of Endearment" is available to rent on YouTube, Google Play, iTunes, and Amazon Prime.

Crescendo (2011): <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=CafJJNETvqM>

An 18th-century woman named Maria considers having an abortion but instead gives birth to a baby boy who becomes one of the most talented individuals in history. Crescendo is a short film based on a true story and was made by some of the same producers who made Bella, another pro-life movie. It won 15 awards and can be viewed for free on YouTube. It lasts only 15 minutes yet is one of the most powerful films I've ever watched.

Horton Hears a Who! (2008)

A jovial elephant named Horton discovers there are tiny people living on a speck of dust and decides to protect them – no matter what his teasing friends in the jungle say. Horton is passionate about those tiny people because, well, "a person's a person, no matter how small." The pro-life community has long considered this Dr. Seuss story an ally – and the 2008 film doesn't disappoint in delivering a strong pro-life message. It features an all-star voice cast, including Jim Carrey, Steve Carell and Carol Burnett.

Rated G.

Bella (2006)

A single waitress gets fired from her job and confides to a friend that she's pregnant and considering an abortion. But that friend – who is harboring a tragic memory from his past – tries to talk her out of it. An all-time favorite film, winner of six awards, including the People's Choice Award at the Toronto International Film Festival. It stars Eduardo Verástegui and Tammy Blanchard. Rated PG-13 for thematic elements and brief disturbing images.

Nine Powerful Pro-Life Movies: includes Meet the Robinsons, Gosnell and Unplanned
